

ABSTRACT

Methods are provided for reducing a pro-multiple sclerosis immune response by administering to an individual a composition comprising an affinity ligand which binds to B cell determinant, and which is administered in an amount effective to reduce B cells.